

-24-

ABSTRACT

A data communication system and method for forwarding data messages in a wireless network having an access point is disclosed. To forward data messages in accordance with the present invention, levels with respect to the access point are 5 determined for wireless devices within the wireless network. Data messages are then transferred sequentially by level between the access point and other wireless devices within the wireless network.